Weiser High School graduates honored at school assembly

by Philip A. Janquart

Students gathered together last week at the annual Weiser High School graduation assembly, which honored Class of 2021 scholarship and award recipients. Parents, friends and scholarship sponsors joined students, teachers and school staff in celebrating the accomplishments of graduates who are preparing for the next step in their lives. “It’s a long tradition at Weiser High School and it’s one that I really value,” said Weiser High School Principal Dave Davies. “I think it’s important to take the time out of the school day, ask the whole student body to sit and recognize the accomplishments of our graduates.”

Weiser is one of few schools to hold such an event, Principal Davies and others making formal scholarship and award presentations to students who were asked to accept them in the presence of their classmates. “I know some places have decided against those kinds of things, but I think it’s okay to pause and celebrate the successes of other people,” he said. “I think the kids responded well. It’s a big part of our culture and I think it’s an important thing to do.” Weiser High’s student body showed healthy enthusiasm for their classmates as evidenced by strong applause and support for all those who received recognition. Students seemed to respond especially well to a senior slide show that identified graduates individually, providing information about their specific plans for the future. Students who succeed can often times serve as an inspiration to their peers. “Kudos to our students for doing what they do,” said Davies, a 1986 Weiser High School graduate. “It’s always good to recognize others and if we can teach our kids to do that once in a while, it’s really a huge deal.” Part of the on-going game plan among Weiser high educators is to cultivate an environment rich in opportunity, although students must take the initiative, Davies reminded. “We have a tradition of doing things ‘the Weiser way,’” he explained. “My philosophy is to create as many opportunities as we can for kids, push them and support them to go and take advantage of those opportunities, and if we can get them to truly invest in themselves, there is no place they can’t go.” Weiser High School graduates have experienced success at every college and university level, according to Davies who said all students are capable of properly preparing themselves for the future. “The big ‘if’ is if they work their tails off and really say ‘I want to prepare myself,’” he said. “If they do that, they can be successful anywhere and in anything that they choose. For me, it’s exciting to know that they came from little Weiser, Idaho.” Davies applauded staff members for their hard work and positive influence in students’ lives, and thanked the community at large for its tremendous support. “The support the community gives to the school district and to the kids is honestly unparalleled,” he lauded. “The generosity of our scholarship sponsors is unbelievable. I’m very proud to be a part of this community.”

Davies began his now 30-year career in education at Middleton High School where he taught math and coached cross-country, basketball and track. He has spent the last 28 years at Weiser High School and has served as principal for the last 15 years.

“I never thought this is where I would end up, but it’s worked out wonderfully.”
